

RHODE ISLAND OFFICE OF COURT INTERPRETERS (OCI)
Monitoring and Reporting of Language Access Services
June 17, 2022

The following report is submitted in compliance with Supreme Court Executive Order 2012-05 (EO) on Language Access activities for the period beginning on January 1, 2021 and ending on December 31, 2021.

The following information addresses subsections described on Page 6, Paragraph H of the aforementioned EO.

- a. This year, the OCI's efforts to increase and maintain a pool of qualified interpreters were successful and the Judiciary was able to provide language services in rare languages, such Bengali, Kisi, Tigrinya, Urdu, Wolof, and Yoruba, amongst others. The OCI translated several court documents and/or forms as requested by several offices within the Judiciary. At the closing of the calendar year, no further policies or procedures were identified as needed to implement the EO.
- b. The OCI provided services in cases where interpreters had been requested by court staff, attorneys, or parties to a case. These services were provided in all four counties in criminal and civil matters. They included: interpretation, translation, sight translation, and court information provided in languages spoken by court users.
  - i. During this calendar year, there were thirty (30) cases that were delayed due to the unavailability of an interpreter. These delays were due to requests made on the day of the hearing and no qualified/certified interpreter was available for the time requested, there was no interpreter available for the particular hearing date and/or time or the wrong language was requested. Whenever possible and if the procedure qualified, an over-the-phone (OPI) was offered. The languages where delays were reported were Bengali, Cape Verdean, Haitian, Kinyarwanda, Korean, Laotian, Portuguese, Quiche, Spanish, Swahili, Tagalog, Turkish, Vietnamese and Wolof.
  - ii. During the period reported, the OCI recorded eleven (11) cases where a qualified/certified interpreter could not be provided for the following languages: Bengali, Kinyarwanda, Korean, Quiche, Swahili, and Wolof. Some of these languages are considered rare languages and the pool of qualified interpreters in and out of state is very small. The OCI works closely with vendors in nearby states to recruit, train, and contract more interpreters for those languages.

- d. During the 2021 calendar year, the OCI did not receive reports of any issue regarding the implementation of the EO or the LAP.
  - i. The Rhode Island Judiciary continues having the Language Assistance Complaint form available in its website. This form describes the process of filing an administrative complaint, where to send it, what steps the Judiciary takes to resolve the issue, and the time allowed for the Administrative Office of State Courts to respond.
  - ii. During the period between January 1, and December 31, 2021, the OCI did not receive any Language Assistance Complaint.

- e. The LAP and EO, and their respective translations into Spanish, Cambodian, and Portuguese continue being available on the Judiciary’s website.
- f. During the 2021 calendar year, the OCI was not able to provide any of the scheduled trainings to court staff, including judges, front-line clerks, bilingual staff, and interpreters who provide services to the Judiciary.
- g. The OCI continues partnering with community agencies and other related agencies to identify individuals with abilities to become qualified/certified interpreters, especially in those languages considered as rare. The OCI also continued its partnership with neighboring states to recognize reciprocity for the use of qualified and certified interpreters. Due to COVID-19, the OCI did not proctor the National Center for State Courts’ certification examination this year.
- h. An updated list of authorized interpreters, translators, and bilingual staff is available at the OCI. This list includes the names, languages, and type of designation held by these professionals.
- i. In addition to a list of downloadable court forms, translated into Spanish and Portuguese and available on the court’s website, the OCI translated twenty-three (23) court related materials, and transcribed and translated forty-eight (48) documents related to court cases.
- j. The following chart indicates a breakdown of the Judiciary expenses in the provision of language services during the period covering January 1, 2021 to December 31, 2021.
